What are Parent and Child Pages?

Confluence uses a genealogical approach for the organization of articles. For instructions on how to add parents and child pages, see Adding Parent and Child Pages.

Parent and Child Pages

A parent page is any page that has pages under it in a page tree. In the Example below, "Creating New Pages" is a parent page because it has pages underneath it in the page tree. "Internal ITS Knowledge Base" is a grandparent page because it has a child page, and that child page has child pages.

Likewise, "Creating a How-to Article in Confluence" is a grandchild page because it has a parent page and a grandparent page, or "ancestor."

![Internal ITS Knowledge Base]
- Creating New Pages
  - Creating a How-to Article in Confluence
  - Creating a Troubleshooting Article in Confluence